The quest for Melbourne’s best public toilets continues with the

ARCHITECTURAL IDEAS COMPETITION FOR A NEW MELBOURNE PUBLIC TOILET as part of GT3, the third and mightiest incarnation of the Golden Toilet Awards

Preamble: Public toilet design in the last decade has moved to a model of single stand alone toilets. This is an alternative to the bulk of Melbourne’s historic public toilets that have multiple cubicles or cater for the use of several people at one time. The ‘Exeloo’ that has been installed in several prominent locations is a proprietary version of this function. GTIII aims to work with toilet zeitgeist and propose a single stand alone unit; however we would hope that design proposals would deal with the bearing of ones unspeakables in a public place such that it is more site specific, fun and explores the rich variety of social and personal rituals that occur in these tiny spaces.

Location: The median strip on Russell Street immediately north of Bourke Street. The design should fit between (incorporate?) the existing trees and not encroach into the road carriageway. Height is limited by sensibility.

This location has been investigated by council for a toilet, however, due to the approval and consultation process involved in erecting any new public convenience, the winner of this competition will not receive a commission to build their design.

Of historical interest is the fact that Melbourne’s first underground public toilet, and Australia’s oldest, exists below ground, to the south of this intersection where the sculpture now sits. It has been sand filled for preservation. Refer site plan.

Brief: A toilet building / installation comprising of 1 toilet pan and 1 hand basin. The facility should be unisex. Given the impracticalities of disabled access to this location, toilets need not be designed to accommodate this.

Format: Entries are to A2 portrait format, mounted to allow for display. Models and / or relief incorporated onto the panels are encouraged. The entry panels will form a part of an exhibition on Melbourne’s toilets that will be open to the public.

Note: as the display of entries will run for approximately 16 weeks, please ensure entries will not peel, bubble or generally look crappy after 3 days.

Exhibition: The GTIII entries will form part of a larger public toilet exhibition to be displayed from early Oct. 05 to end Jan. 06 at the City Gallery, Melbourne Town Hall, Swanston St, Melbourne. The exhibition will include items for the MCC’s Art and Heritage collection, as well artworks responding to the MCC collection and Melbourne’s public toilets.

Note: Material deemed inappropriate will not be exhibited.

Prizes: Through the generosity of Caroma Industries, we offer the following cash prizes:

1st - $1000, 2nd - $400, 3rd - $200

Winners will be announced at an awards evening at the City Gallery and will be personally notified.

Entries are due by 5pm on Monday September the 12th.

Please submit to The Rexroth Mannasmann Collective's offices at: upstairs 173 Brunswick Street, Fitzroy, 3065. The rear of each entry should be clearly marked with entrants name and contact details. No entrant details are to appear on the front of the panels.
